Interested in learning more about the history of Cape Cod with Jim Coogan, taking a beginning watercolor class, enjoying the short story, tapping into the poetic muse, watching the 12 films that all film buffs should know or learning to fish Cape Cod beaches? These are just a few of the 50 courses offered this spring at the Academy for Lifelong Learning (ALL) of Cape Cod.

The catalog and registration form for the spring semester are now available at capecodall.org. Registration begins on Monday, January 8, and classes begin on Monday, January 29. A limited number of catalogs will soon be available at COA senior centers and town libraries.

Some classes are in-person at the ALL Suite in Grossman Commons at Cape Cod Community College; others are on Zoom and some are hybrid classes (in-person and Zoom). See the catalog for details.

ALL is a nonprofit, all-volunteer organization that has been offering enrichment and academic classes since 1987 to people ages 50 and over. ALL also offers its members special events and social activities.

For more information about the organization, visit capecodall.org or email lifelonglearning@capecod.edu.
